SCHOOL OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Celebrating 85 Years of Excellence

In 1934, American University School of Public Affairs was established as part of President Franklin Delano Roosevelt's New Deal. From FDR's vision for "practical contacts between the collegiate and educational world, and the operations of government," the School of Public Affairs at American University was born.

For 85 years, SPA has been committed to training, educating, informing, and elevating public servants.

Thank you, public servants, for your service and for making our communities, states, and country better every day.

Dear Colleagues:

Eighty years ago, our Society's founders set forth a mission as bold and encompassing as the field in which we practice, study, teach and research: to advance excellence in public service. As the leading professional public service organization bridging the practitioner and academic communities, we have seen our field evolve, become more specialized and face ever increasing pressures on the men and women dedicated to doing the public good. Despite these changes and the passage of time, ASPA has remained steadfast in our mission, one that remains as relevant today as ever before.

It is in this spirit that we welcome to Washington, DC for our Society's 80th Annual Conference. Against the backdrop of unprecedented challenges for our field, it is in many ways appropriate that we gather not only where our national government is rooted, but where state and local governments and private and nonprofit organizations intersect in very special ways. Our host city is a microcosm of our entire public service sector; we all can learn from being here.

Our conference theme, A Call for Action: Advancing Public Service, encourages dialogue aimed at generating actionable ideas to help us serve across four critical, high impact areas: infrastructure, public finance, public service and social equity. Our fifth track—global public administration—recognizes that our field is an interconnected one, spanning geographic boundaries. We encourage you to make the most of this conference, including new features that will enable you to engage in different ways. Our five topical tracks provide a focused experience that drills in on our most critical challenges; you can be as concentrated or general as you wish with your learning experience. Taking place throughout the conference pop-up panels will allow you to continue discussions with your peers outside formalized panels. Eighteen presidential panels will bring forth insights on the critical issues of our time from some of the most informed experts across the field.

In keeping with our robust history, we will honor individuals who embody the ideals of those for whom our lectures are named, recognizing excellence in practice, academia and advancing social equity, one of ASPA's core values. We will honor career-long public service excellence through the National Public Service Awards and, of course, recognize the next generation of public service leaders through the 2019 class of Founders' Fellows.

Please join us for the welcome reception, taking place here at the historic Mayflower Hotel, where you can network with colleagues and friends, enjoy entertainment and celebrate our 80th anniversary in style. Taking place Sunday and Monday evenings, university and group receptions will offer even more occasions for you to network with your peers and honor individuals for their accomplishments. We are most grateful to those individuals and organizations that have generously supported our receptions—and the entirety of our conference—through sponsorships, contributions and other gifts. You have made this event possible.

We extend a warm greeting to those who have made attending our conference an annual tradition. For those joining us for the first time, we know you will find this conference to be a welcoming place to forge new professional and personal relationships; we hope this is the first of many you will attend.

Thank you for attending our Society's 2019 Annual Conference. We are grateful to each of you for actively and meaningfully engaging in our work. We salute your dedication and commitment to public service, in the United States and around the world.

Jane Pisano
2018-2019 President

Bill Shields
Executive Director

Dear Conference Attendees:

Welcome to Washington, D.C.—the epicenter of the United States public service and nonprofit administration fields. Also, to us at The School of Public Affairs (SPA) at American University, it's our hometown.

At SPA, we celebrate our shared commitments with ASPA—promoting the value of joining and elevating the public service profession, achieving innovative solutions in governance and providing education and professional development for those committed to public service.

This month marks SPA's 85th anniversary. In 1934, the School of Public Affairs at American University was established to train federal employees with the skills needed for President Franklin D. Roosevelt's pioneering New Deal legislation.

At the school's dedication, FDR shared his vision for “practical contacts between the collegiate and educational world, and the operations of government.” He believed that the collaboration of academia and public service would result in better decisionmaking, not only for Depression-era Americans, but also for future generations.

For more than eight decades, we have married FDR's vision with the theoretical and practical skills public service professionals need, working toward this year's ASPA meeting theme of advancing public service.

The school is grateful for public servants—many of whom are SPA alumni—who make our communities, states and country better every day. We are also proud of AU President Sylvia Burwell, who has dedicated a lifetime commitment to public service and will deliver the 2019 Donald C. Stone lecture.

We look forward to robust conversations and exciting ideas throughout the conference. Our thanks go to each and every one of you in public service. We are committed to your advancement.

Sincerely,

Vicky Wilkins

Global Public Administration Track

Rich Callahan

Rich Callahan's research, consulting, publications and teaching focuses on leadership behaviors, strategy and performance management practices that are effective in complex and dynamic environments in the public sector. He is a professor at the University of San Francisco, with a joint appointment in the School of Management and the School of Nursing and Health Professions. He is also an elected fellow in the National Academy of Public Administration and the current editor of the International Journal of Public Leadership. He was a visiting researcher at Oxford University in 2016, the Visiting Scholar 2018 for the Center for California Studies and a Fulbright Specialist award in 2011 for lectures on public institutions at Aydin University, Istanbul, Turkey. He has been published in journals such as Public Administration Review, Public Management Review, Government Finance Officers Review and The National Civic Review.

Marilyn Rubin

Marilyn Rubin is a distinguished research fellow at the School of Public Affairs and Administration at Rutgers—Newark. She is also professor emerita of public administration and economics and former director of the MPA Program at John Jay College of the City University of New York (CUNY). She has had more than 35 years of experience working as a consultant and advisor to high-level government officials in the United States and abroad on projects related to fiscal policy, economic development and strategic planning and has been a member of economic advisory boards to elected officials at the federal, state and local levels. She is a National Academy of Public Administration fellow and has been a member of editorial boards for Public Administration Review and Public Budgeting and Finance. She has edited books and book chapters and published several articles in many professional journals, as well as serving as a visiting professor at universities outside the United States including Xiamen University, Jiangxi University and Sun Yat Sen University in China. She has been a Fulbright senior specialist program advisor in Ecuador and Brazil, as well.

Infrastructure Track

Wendy Haynes

Wendy Haynes serves as special assistant to the vice president for university advancement at Bridgewater State University. A tenured full professor and former director of the NASPAA-accredited MPA program, Haynes brings a rich background of public service leadership, as well as scholarship, teaching and consulting, to her new role. She is a seasoned “pracademic,” having served in a variety of state and local government leadership roles across the United States. Intrigued by systems for ensuring institutional accountability and smart strategic planning, she served for 13 years in the Massachusetts Office of Inspector General, most recently as first assistant inspector general for megaproject oversight. She is an ASPA past president, a NAPA fellow and deeply engaged in the State Department’s Young African Leader Initiative and Mandela Washington Fellowship. Haynes lives on Cape Cod with her husband and contends that being a grandmother is the best job ever.

John Kirlin

Distinguished professor of public policy John Kirlin is the founding director of McGeorge’s Public Policy Program, offering two degrees: master’s of public policy and master’s of public administration. He is the author of more than 100 articles, chapters and monographs, and 13 books. He is a National Academy of Public Administration fellow and has served as a consultant to the State of California on matters ranging from species protection to oversight of local government debt and the interface of energy and environmental policies. He served as executive director of the Marine Life Protection Act Initiative as well, making recommendations to the California Fish and Game Commission for protection of marine life along the California coast, and as executive director of Delta Vision, reframing state water policies and ecosystem vitality in the Delta, foundational work for a major package of legislation enacted in 2009.

Public Finance and Public Service Tracks

Judy England-Joseph

Judy England-Joseph is a strategic advisor and former director of research with the Partnership for Public Service; an employee engagement consultant with CPSHR; and an adjunct professor at the Schar School of Policy and Government, George Mason University. She was formerly a senior executive with the U.S. Government Accountability Office (GAO) and now works in its Center for Audit Excellence. Her work covers a wide range of organizational performance assessment, strategic planning, enterprise risk management, leadership and human capital management issues. She also develops and delivers training on the design and conduct of performance auditing for federal Inspectors General, State Auditors and Supreme Audit Institutions (GAO equivalents) around the world. While an executive at GAO, she led its work in the housing, community and economic development, small business, emergency management, telecommunications and energy areas. She oversaw more than 600 congressionally requested reviews of federal programs, many of which resulted in legislative actions, budgetary savings and improved government performance. She represented GAO by testifying in more than 100 congressional hearings, on national television, in the press and at national conferences. She is a National Academy of Public Administration fellow and a member of its Board of Directors, and president of ASPA's National Capital Area Chapter. She is a graduate of American University.

American University

In 1934, one year after President Franklin Delano Roosevelt signed his famous New Deal legislation, The School of Public Affairs at American University was born to train many of those who were part of FDR's pioneering plan. What started as a program to instruct federal workers would grow into one of the top schools of public affairs in the nation. To this day, 85 years later, FDR's vision remains at the heart of our school: A vision of building a bridge between academic thought and policy planning, while inspiring change at every level. Our faculty, students and graduates are driven by a sense of higher purpose: the desire to make the world a better place. Read more about SPA at www.american.edu/spa.

ASPAs Is Eco-Friendly!

ASPAs recognizes the importance of protecting the environment and “green” meeting practices. We have eliminated paper copies of presentation abstracts and conference addenda. Panel updates and changes will be made daily and posted on the Annual Conference website, www.aspanet.org/conference2019.

INSPIRING LEADERS TO ADVANCE THE COMMON GOOD

Ranked among the country's top 10 professional public policy and planning schools, the Humphrey School of Public Affairs at the University of Minnesota is widely recognized for its role in examining public issues and shaping policy and planning at the local, state, national, and international levels.

- » Six Master's Degrees
- » PhD in Public Affairs
- » Six Certificates

INNOVATIVE, ONLINE TOOLS SHARE RESEARCH WITH PUBLIC

In 2018, the Humphrey School launched an online collection of multimedia projects designed to share faculty's research findings with policymakers and community partners in engaging and accessible ways.

The collection, called Civios, currently features more than 40 podcasts, videos, and mixed media presentations on issues ranging from immigration to sex trafficking and climate change. New products are uploaded regularly, and then shared with practitioners and the broader public through social networks.

Check out the research at civios.umn.edu.

FACULTY NEWS

DANIEL CHENG

Associate Professor

Cheng joined the Humphrey School last year after completing a PhD and serving as a Visiting Assistant Professor at Indiana University. He researches questions surrounding governance, government-nonprofit relationships, co-production, and cross-sector collaboration, often with a focus on urban sustainability. Recent work examines the processes and consequences of nonprofits becoming important players in determining and financing public service provision.

KATHY QUICK

Associate Professor

Quick's research focuses on practices and processes for involving diverse stakeholders in policy-making to address complex public problems, particularly the role of public and nonprofit managers and agencies in public engagement. Research policy areas include urban planning, transportation safety and infrastructure policy, community-police relations, and environmental management.

JERRY ZHAO

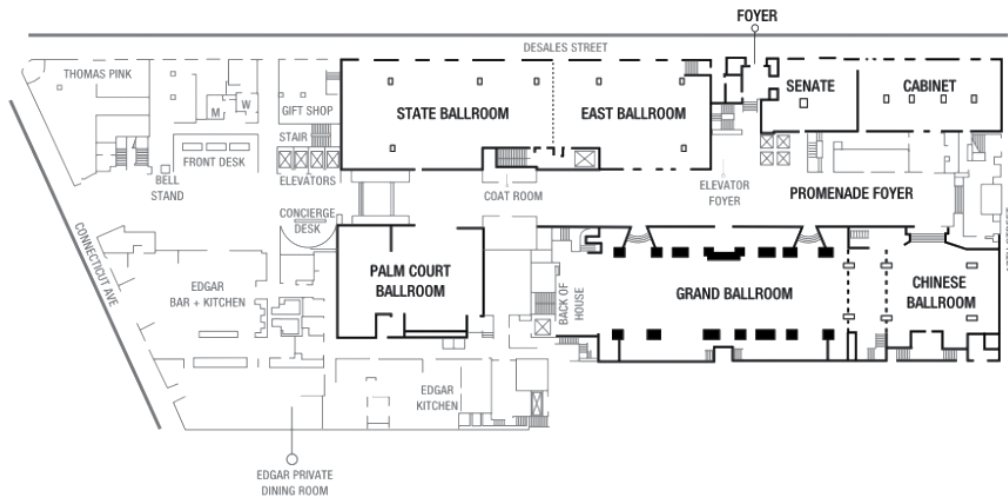

Associate Professor

Zhao serves as the Director of Graduate Studies for the Master of Public Policy (MPP) program. He also directs the Institute for Urban & Regional Infrastructure Finance to advance research and engagement on strategic issues of infrastructure investment across urban and rural areas. In ASPA, Zhao chairs the Section on Chinese Public Administration (SCPA), and he is just elected to serve on ASPA's National Council, representing District IV.

A GUIDE TO THE 2019 ANNUAL CONFERENCE TRACKS

ASPA's 2019 Annual Conference features a more targeted, focused conference experience, looking at five critical areas of public administration: global public administration, infrastructure, public finance, public service and social equity.

To help you better decide which panels to attend, you will find that panel details throughout the book are color-coded based on the track and grouped together for ease of reading.

● Global Public Administration

The globe may be large, but the public administration world is more inextricably linked than ever before. Actions in nation-states can directly, often quickly, affect policy and administration in others. As important, one nation's experiences can inform others, providing best practices that bridge the geographic divide and can be applied in a global context. Panels will address public administration from an international perspective.

● Infrastructure

In the United States and beyond, public infrastructure faces an uphill battle. Examples include crumbling bricks-and-mortar bridges and highways, crowded transportation systems, underdeveloped cyber infrastructure and waterways fraught with health and transportation concerns. Addressing the infrastructure challenge requires foreseeing an infrastructure for the future. How will we pay for it and how will we manage it? These panels will address critical, practical concerns that affect all of us, every day.

● Public Finance

No matter the public program or service, government must be able to pay for it. Operating in an environment where uncertainty is the norm, predictability can be finance's best friend. What tools can finance and budget offices use to identify and address problems before they happen, make fiscally responsible decisions and operate effectively? These panels will help advance a greater understanding of the public finance role and challenges associated.

● Public Service

Public service is a bold and noble profession, but one too often subject to demoralizing commentary and pejorative characterization. In the meantime, the rules and practices under which civil servants operate—from recruitment to retention, engagement to training—are drawing heightened attention with an eye toward putting best practices and reform into action. Panels will highlight what is working well at all levels of public service.

Track Sponsored By:

● Social Equity

Equity, or a lack thereof, underpins government's most important work. Public servants should be treated in an equitable fashion and the services they provide must be equitable as well. Infrastructure must be equitable to enable success for all populations. Government budgeting and finance must be equitable to enable public works to serve all people. Further, we must understand ways to measure the success and impact of equity in public programs. These panels will shape our understanding of these issues and showcase programs done well.

Jane Pisano

Jane Pisano is professor in the University of Southern California (USC) Sol Price School of Public Policy. Her areas of expertise include nonprofit leadership and management, public administration, public-private partnerships and civic engagement.

Pisano served as president and director of the Natural History Museum of Los Angeles County from 2001 to 2015. Her top priorities were to focus on the museum visitor's experience by transforming the institution into a 21st century destination. She supported innovative programming, strengthened the scientific program and built partnerships that positioned the museum as a hub for public dialogue.

Pisano joined USC in 1991 as dean of the School of Public Administration. During her nearly seven-year tenure, she led a major effort to strengthen the school academically at both the graduate and undergraduate levels. In 1994, Pisano was appointed vice president of external relations at the university and was promoted to senior vice president in 1998. She also developed a community outreach program that was nationally recognized when USC was named Time magazine College of the Year in 2000. She conceptualized and implemented the Good Neighbors campaign to fund university/neighborhood partnerships for neighborhood improvement.

Pisano earned master's and doctorate degrees in international relations from the Johns Hopkins University School of Advanced International Studies, and her bachelor's degree from Stanford University.

Paul Danczyk

Paul Danczyk is director of executive education in Sacramento for the University of Southern California Sol Price School of Public Policy. In this role, he designs, coordinates and presents in leadership and management programs reaching national, state and local governments and nonprofit organizations. Over the past five years, Danczyk expanded programmatic collaborations through a portfolio totaling more than $1 million annually. As an executive coach, he worked one-on-one with more than 400 public sector senior executives and administrators. He is cofounder and lead architect of www.LeadershipEnergizes.com, a 360-degree leadership assessment for executives and emerging leaders. He also teaches master-level classes in California and, previously, Mexico.

With the National Council's support and guidance and as 2019-2020 president, Danczyk's vision expands ASPA's impacts in unison with Chapters and Sections through targeted programming culminating toward the ASPA annual conference, 2020 Vision for Politics, Policy, and Administration, which will take place in Anaheim, California April 3-7, 2020. This approach builds on significant leadership and staff efforts delivering a robust webinar series, expanding member relationships and benefits, and strengthening strategic organizational partnerships that extend well beyond sponsorship opportunities.

A returned Peace Corps Volunteer, Danczyk earned his PhD from the University of Pittsburgh, focusing on Public and International Affairs; a Master of Public Administration from the University of Southern California; and a Bachelor of Science in Education from The Pennsylvania State University. He is a professional certified coach through the International Coaching Federation, trained at the Hudson Institute for Coaching, and he holds certifications from Harvard University's Mediating Disputes Program and Barrett's Values Centre.

An ongoing student of the arts and sciences, Danczyk enjoys landscaping, creating sculptures, painting, and bee keeping.

Anthony A. Williams

Tony Williams, the former mayor of Washington, DC (1999-2007), is chief executive officer of the Federal City Council, an organization focusing the creative and administrative talents of Washington's business and professional leaders on major problems and opportunities facing the District.

Williams is widely credited with leading Washington's comeback during his two terms as mayor, restoring our nation's capital's finances and improving the performance of government agencies, all while lowering taxes and investing in infrastructure and human services.

In addition to his duties with the Federal City Council, Williams is a senior advisor to King and Spaulding, LLP and serves on several company boards, as well as the boards of Urban Institute and the National Geographic Society. Prior to Federal City Council, he led the global government practice at the Corporate Executive Board in Arlington, Virginia. He also taught public finance and urban leadership as the William H. Bloomberg lecturer in public management at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government, while coordinating programs for the Municipal Innovation Program at the Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation.

Williams holds a bachelor's degree from Yale, a master's degree from the Harvard Kennedy School and a J.D. from Harvard Law School, as well as a number of awards and honorary degrees, including Governing Magazine Public Official of the Year in 1997. He is a National Academy of Public Administration fellow and former president of the National League of Cities.

He has led the school in this role since 2005. He is a leading scholar in the fields of political institutions and public policy and is a past president of the Network of Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration (NASPAA), the international association of schools of public affairs. He has published three books, including Reforming Bureaucracy: The Politics of Institutional Choice, and numerous journal articles and book chapters. In addition, he has earned fellowships from the Russell Sage Foundation and the International Institute of Management in Berlin, and has served as a consultant to the W.K. Kellogg Foundation.

Dean Knott will be joined by an esteemed group of panelists to discuss public administration and democracy, and the importance each of these topics plays with the other.

PANELISTS

Paul C. Light

Paul C. Light is a professor of public service at New York University. He is the director of studies at the National Academy of Public Administration, a senior advisor to Sen. John Glenn (D-OH) and vice president for governmental studies at the Brookings Institution. He is the author of The Government-Industrial Complex: Tracking the True Size of Government, 1984-2018.

Shelley Metzenbaum

Shelley Metzenbaum works to bring about a better world through better government, working both within and outside government. As founder of The BETTER Project, she encourages governments and those funded or regulated by government to use goals, data, analysis, well-designed trials, incentives and visualization to find ways to improve outcomes and other aspects of performance, and to avoid using these tools in ways that create fear and dysfunctional responses. Metzenbaum previously served as founding president of the Volcker Alliance, associate director for performance and personnel management at the U.S. Office of Management and Budget, head of regional operations at the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, and undersecretary of environmental affairs and director of capital budgeting for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. She holds a doctorate in public policy from the Harvard Kennedy School and a bachelor's degree in humanities and Asian studies.

Mary Guy

Mary Guy is professor of public administration in the School of Public Affairs at the University of Colorado Denver. Her research and teaching interests focus on the human processes involved in public service delivery. She currently leads a team of researchers who are investigating the everyday work experience of public servants around the globe. Guy is a fellow of the National Academy of Public Administration, past president of ASPA and past editor in chief of the Review of Public Personnel Administration.

Patricia Shields

Patricia Shields is currently a professor at Texas State University. Her research interests include the application of the philosophy of pragmatism to the field of public administration. She found Jane Addams as a recently recovered founder of classical pragmatism and democratic theorist. Following her dissertation research, which looked at the equity of the military recruitment process during the Vietnam era, she has studied civil/military relations. In 2001, Shields became editor-in-chief of Armed Forces & Society, a top 10 military studies journal. Addams' role as leader of the women's peace movement led to the Nobel Peace Prize; her three books about peace were less well known. Recognizing this omission, Shields investigated Addams' ideas of peace, seeing applications for contemporary peacekeeping operations and within public administration itself. Shields has won Public Administration Review's Laverne Burchfield Award, the Section for Women in Public Administration's Rita Mae Kelly Research Award for Outstanding Research in Gender Related Issues and NASPAA's Leslie A. Christopher Hill

Ambassador Christopher Hill is chief advisor to the chancellor for global engagement and professor of the practice in diplomacy at the University of Denver. Prior to this position, he was dean of the Josef Korbel School of International Studies at the university, a position he held from September 2010-December 2017.

Prior to serving in academia, Hill was a career diplomat and four-time ambassador, nominated by three presidents, whose most recent post was as ambassador to Iraq (2009-2010). Prior to Iraq, Hill served as assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs from 2005-2009, during which he was the head of the United States delegation to the “six party talks” regarding North Korea’s nuclear armaments. Earlier, he was U.S. ambassador to the Republic of Korea. Previously he served as ambassador to Poland (2000-2004), ambassador to the Republic of Macedonia (1996-1999) and special envoy to Kosovo (1998-1999). He also served as a special assistant to the president and a senior director on the staff of the National Security Council (1999-2000).

Earlier in his Foreign Service career, Hill served tours in Belgrade, Warsaw, Seoul and Tirana, and on the Department of State’s policy planning staff and in the department’s operation center. While on a fellowship with the American Political Science Association, he served as a staff member for Congressman Stephen Solarz working on Eastern European issues. He also served as the Department of State’s senior country officer for Poland. Hill received the department’s Distinguished Service Award for his contributions as a member of the United States negotiating team in the Bosnia peace settlement and was a recipient of the Robert S. Frasure Award for Peace Negotiations for his work on the Kosovo crisis.

Hill graduated from Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine with a BA; he received a master’s degree from the Naval War College in 1994. He speaks Polish, Serbo-Croatian and Macedonian.

Ambassador Hill will sign copies of his memoir, Outpost—Life on the Frontlines of American Diplomacy: A Memoir, following his remarks. The signing will take place in the Exhibit Hall (State and East Rooms) starting at 5:30 p.m. Thanks to KramerBooks for supporting this booksigning event.

Sylvia M. Burwell is American University's 15th president and the first woman to serve as president. A visionary leader with experience in the public and private sectors, President Burwell brings to American University a commitment to education and research, the ability to manage large and complex organizations, and experience helping to advance solutions to some of the world's most pressing challenges.

Burwell has held two cabinet positions in the United States government. She served as the 22nd secretary of the US Department of Health and Human Services from 2014 to 2017. During her tenure, she managed a trillion-dollar department that includes the National Institutes of Health, Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, Food and Drug Administration, and the Medicaid and Medicare programs; oversaw the successful implementation of the Affordable Care Act; and led the department's responses to the Ebola and Zika outbreaks. Before that, she served as the director of the Office of Management and Budget, working with Congress to negotiate a two-year budget deal following the 2013 government shutdown. In both roles she was known as a leader who worked successfully across the aisle and focused on delivering results for the American people.

Her additional government experience is extensive and includes roles as deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget, deputy chief of staff to the president, chief of staff to the secretary of the Treasury, and special assistant to the director of the National Economic Council.

Burwell has held leadership positions at two of the largest foundations in the world. She served 11 years at the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, including roles as the chief operating officer and president of the Global Development Program. She then served as president of the Walmart Foundation and ran its global Women's Economic Empowerment efforts. Her private sector experience includes service on the Board of Directors of MetLife.

She earned a bachelor's degree in Government from Harvard University and a BA in Philosophy, Policy and Economics from the University of Oxford as a Rhodes Scholar.

A second-generation Greek American, Burwell is a native of Hinton, West Virginia. She and her husband Stephen Burwell are the parents of two young children.

UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
BIDEN SCHOOL OF PUBLIC POLICY & ADMINISTRATION

Joseph R. Biden, Jr.

Joseph Robinette Biden, Jr. represented Delaware for 36 years in the U.S. Senate before becoming the 47th Vice President of the United States.

Joseph Robinette Biden, Jr., was born November 20, 1942, in Scranton, Pennsylvania, the first of four siblings. In 1953, the Biden family moved from Pennsylvania to Claymont, Delaware. He graduated from the University of Delaware and Syracuse Law School and served on the New Castle County Council. Then, at age 29, he became one of the youngest people ever elected to the United States Senate.

Just weeks after the election, tragedy struck the Biden family when then Senator-elect Biden's wife, Neilia, and their one-year-old daughter, Naomi, died and his 2 sons were injured in an auto accident. Vice President Biden was sworn into the U.S. Senate at his sons' hospital bedside and began commuting to Washington every day by train, a practice he maintained throughout his career in the Senate.

In 1977, Vice President Biden married Jill Jacobs. Jill Biden, who holds a Doctorate in Education, is a life-long educator and currently teaches at a community college in Northern Virginia. The Vice President's son, Beau, was Delaware's Attorney General from 2007-2015 and a Major in the 261st Signal Brigade of the Delaware National Guard. He was deployed to Iraq in 2008-2009. Beau passed away in 2015 after battling brain cancer with the same integrity, courage, and strength he demonstrated every day of his life. The Vice President's second son, Hunter, is an attorney who manages a private equity firm in Washington, D.C. His daughter Ashley is a social worker and Executive Director of the Delaware Center for Justice. Vice President Biden has five grandchildren: Naomi, Finnegan, Roberta Mabel ("Maisy"), Natalie, and Robert Hunter.

As a Senator from Delaware for 36 years, Vice President Biden established himself as a leader in facing some of our nation's most important domestic and international challenges. As Chairman or Ranking Member of the Senate Judiciary Committee for 17 years, then-Senator Biden was widely recognized for his work on criminal justice issues, including the landmark 1994 Crime Act and the Violence Against Women Act. As Chairman or Ranking Member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for 12 years, then-Senator Biden played a pivotal role in shaping U.S. foreign policy. He has been at the forefront of issues and legislation related to terrorism, weapons of mass destruction, post-Cold War Europe, the Middle East, and Southwest Asia.

As the 47th Vice President of the United States, Joe Biden continued his leadership on important issues facing the nation and represented America abroad, traveling over 1.2 million miles to more than 50 countries. Vice President Biden convened sessions of the President's Cabinet, led interagency efforts, and worked with Congress in his fight to raise the living standards of middle class Americans, reduce gun violence, and address violence against women. In the final year of the Administration, Vice President Biden led the Cancer Moonshot, an international effort to end cancer as we know it.

Since leaving the White House in January 2017, Vice President Biden has continued his legacy of expanding opportunity for all, both in the United States and abroad, with the creation of the Biden Foundation, the Penn Biden Center for Diplomacy and Global Engagement at the University of Pennsylvania, the Biden Cancer Initiative, and the Biden Institute at the University of Delaware. Through these non-profit organizations, Vice President Biden and Dr. Biden are developing programs designed to advance smart policies, convene experts and world leaders on the issues they care most about, and impact the national debate about how America can continue to lead in the 21st century. In addition, Vice President Biden formed a political action committee, "American Possibilities," which will allow him to continue to support Democratic candidates and causes across the country.

Finally, in November 2017, Vice President Biden released his second book, Promise Me, Dad: A Year of Hope, Hardship, and Purpose. The book, a New York Times #1 Bestseller, is a personal story from a father, grandfather, husband, and friend as he confronts the inevitability of devastating personal loss, while trying to balance his duty to his family and his country.

He has received numerous awards and accolades, including the National Civil Rights Museum's Freedom Award and the Medal of Freedom with Distinction.

In December of 2018, the University of Delaware named its school of public policy the Joseph R. Biden, Jr. School of Public Policy and Administration.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Data Analytics

FRIDAY, MARCH 8

9:30 a.m. - 10:45 a.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Service

Achieving agencies' vital missions, including tackling complex national challenges and threats, requires a focus on learning and continuous improvement. A key improvement strategy is using data and evidence to learn and do what works—and adjust what does not. At a time when technology allows for the collection, combination and analysis of vast reams of data and government prepares for the automation of much of its administrative daily work, government leaders must challenge themselves to think through ways to harness these new capacities to ensure programs effectively achieve the outcomes our country needs. During this panel, you will hear from select agencies about practices that enable them to leverage data in making important decisions and improving program management and performance.

Moderator

Mallory Bulman

Mallory Barg Bulman leads the Partnership for Public Service's research and evaluation portfolios. She is responsible for strengthening the evidence that the Partnership uses to hold government leaders accountable and identifying innovation and best practices across government.

She also is responsible for assessing the impact of the Partnership's programs and supporting its continuous improvement. Bulman has more than a decade of experience using data and insights to drive change in government.

Presenter

Andrew Feldman

Andrew Feldman is director in the public sector practice at Grant Thornton. His work focuses on helping public sector organizations use evidence, data and innovation to better achieve their missions. He also hosts the Gov Innovator podcast, with more than 160 interviews for results-focused leaders. His prior positions include visiting fellow at the Center for Children and Families at the Brookings Institution, special adviser on the evidence team at the White House Office of Management and Budget in the Obama administration, one of the top three appointed leaders in Wisconsin's labor department, senior policy adviser in the Office of Wisconsin Gov. Jim Doyle, staff economist at the White House Council of Economic Advisers in the Clinton administration and special assistant to the president at MDRC, a social policy research firm. He earned his undergraduate degree from Swarthmore College and his master's degree and doctorate in public policy from Harvard University. He is a National Academy of Public Administration fellow.

Revitalizing the Middle Class: Workforce Issues

FRIDAY, MARCH 8

11:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Service

Of the many challenges our country faces, the instability of the middle class is one that could yield the most dramatic consequences for our nation if not effectively addressed. Vice President Biden and his institute at the University of Delaware have set out to tackle this issue head-on, calling it "the great challenge of our time." This panel, organized in conjunction with the Biden Institute and its expert economists, demographers and other consultants, will focus on workforce issues affecting the middle class, including income inequality, defining the poverty line, transportation equity, health and child care challenges. The panel is a continuation of discussions that the institute has been having with public administrators and academics over the past 18 months. Be in the audience to share your voice as we continue generating ideas the vice president and policymakers can put to use to revitalize our middle class.

Moderator

Maria Aristigueta

Maria Aristigueta is director of the Biden School of Public Policy and Administration at the University of Delaware. Her teaching and research interests are in creating strong institutions to strengthen democracy, particularly as it pertains to organizational behavior and performance management.

She serves on the NASPAA Executive Council, and is an ASPA past president and National Academy of Public Administration fellow. She has published numerous journal articles, book chapters and books, including

Managing for Results in State Government; Managing Human Behavior in Public and Nonprofit Organizations (co-author), Managing and Measuring Performance in Public and Nonprofit Organizations, and Organizational Behavior; she is co-editor of the International Handbook of Practice-Based Performance Management. The Buck Stops Here: How Federal Leaders Can Reduce Improper Payments

12:45 p.m. - 2:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Finance

In 2017, improper payments totaled more than $140 billion across the government. Ensuring that taxpayer money is properly spent is a critical function of the government, whether it involves getting the correct benefits to deserving veterans or preventing fraudulent payments to scammers. When agencies mistakenly send payments to people who are not entitled to them or pay incorrect benefit amounts, it is a sign of government ineffectiveness. Utilizing government-wide strategies to reduce improper payments is one piece of the puzzle. Agencies also need to adopt solutions that address root causes of improper payments within their programs. Join this panel discussion about how the federal government can partner with states to improve program integrity. We will look at how using behavioral economics can reduce improper payments, as well.

Moderator

Dave Mader

Dave Mader is chief strategy officer for the civilian sector with Deloitte Consulting LLP in the federal government practice. As a key member of Deloitte's federal leadership team, he shapes and drives the strategy for partnering with civilian government agencies to address complex business challenges, especially those that require cross-agency collaboration. In this role, he also leads the expansion of Deloitte's shared services offerings, as well as its cross-federal approach to reduce the government's amount of improper payments. Prior to joining Deloitte, Mader served as controller of the Office of Management and Budget and served the Internal Revenue Service for more than 30 years. A longtime leader in the federal government community, he has received numerous awards for his work, sat on key industry boards and published a number of industry-related articles.

The Future Has Begun: Using Artificial Intelligence to Transform Government

FRIDAY, MARCH 8

3:45 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Service

In hindsight, it is easy to identify Alexander Graham Bell's invention of the telephone in the 1870s as an instrument of marvel. And, of course, there is the Internet, which few can envision living without despite it being barely 30 years old. Similarly, future historians may look back at this decade as the point at which artificial intelligence (AI) forever changed how the world works, revolutionizing the way we perceive, think, reason, learn and make decisions. More important, AI has the potential to help address many of our country's pervasive problems and advance our well being, as well as transform government. But, it also will change the way public servants do their jobs, and the federal government will have to manage the resulting challenges. This panel will look at this question.

Looking Ahead: What the Public Sector of the Future Must Look Like

SATURDAY, MARCH 9

10:45 a.m. - 12:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Service

It is a challenge that transcends geographic boundaries and levels of government: recruiting and retaining the best and brightest into the public sector. As the traditional definition of "public service" evolves and expands, so too do the skills needed to effectively serve the public good and the expectations governments have of the next generation of public service leaders. And, this transformation is taking place against the backdrop of the ever increasing challenge of inspiring new professionals to join a profession whose work goes unheralded and often unappreciated. What is happening on the front lines of federal, state, county and local governments? A distinguished panel of executives from leading public service organizations will share what they are finding and what they believe lies ahead.

Presenters

Shawn Skelly

The New Financial Sustainability Framework

SATURDAY, MARCH 9

1:45 p.m. - 3:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Finance

The Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA) and its university partners have been researching a new model for how local governments can become financially sustainable. The model is based on a Nobel Prize-winning body of work about how communities can make better decisions about shared resources, such as a public budget. It also builds on many concepts for which GFOA has long advocated, but raises new concepts that research has shown to be vital to financial sustainability. Join this session to be introduced to the new framework, learn its essential components and find out how it has been applied.

Cybersecurity: "Infrastructure" and So Much More

SUNDAY, MARCH 10

8:30 a.m. - 9:45 a.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Infrastructure

The federal Cybersecurity Framework, developed by the National Institute of Standards and Technology in the U.S. Department of Commerce, was launched originally by President Obama and continued by President Trump. Infrastructure within the framework includes utilities providing energy and water, as well as sectors covering transportation, financial services, communication, health care and public health, dams, key manufacturers, emergency services and more. In fact, cybersecurity itself encompasses all that we consider "infrastructure." This panel will look at the state of our nation's cyber infrastructure and offer attendees a profound appreciation for its complexity. You also will walk away with a sense of the urgency associated with actions that must be taken to prevent multi-dimensional threats we invite if we fail to address cybersecurity challenges.

No Time to Wait

SUNDAY, MARCH 10

11:45 a.m. – 1:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Service

Whether recognized or not, today’s federal civil service is in a state of dysfunction that is creating a genuine national crisis—one that must be solved immediately. Our country needs a public service workforce that is equipped to do the people’s work, managed effectively and structured to support our country for generations to come. How do we get there? The National Academy of Public Administration’s “No Time to Wait” reports, released in 2017 and 2018, identified specific problems and provided thoughtful solutions. Recommendations on the table include flexibility in support of mission; replacing job specifications with a competency-based, talent-management model; reinforcing merit-system principles; leading from the center; and transforming the federal government’s human capital backbone. What has been done with these recommendations? This panel will look at that question and more.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Managing Our Country’s Watershed Infrastructure

MONDAY, MARCH 11

8:00 a.m. - 9:15 a.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Infrastructure

Many U.S. communities are dependent on human management of large natural watersheds. The Mississippi River drainage basin encompasses lands in 32 states. The Colorado and Columbia Rivers each drain parts of seven states. The Chesapeake Bay watershed encompasses parts of six states. The infrastructure projects that altered and now manage these watersheds include dredging, dams, levees and more with a variety of policy goals, including flood control, irrigation, power generation, navigation and recreation. In addition, climate change is projected to include severe rainfall, “flashier” floods and sea level rise in coastal areas, which only will increase today’s challenges. This panel will examine the range of policy goals affecting our nation’s watersheds.

#MeToo: The Role of Universities in the MeToo Movement

MONDAY, MARCH 11

11:15 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Social Equity

Are universities taking a proactive stance in addressing sexual harassment and assault? The #MeToo movement has played a critical role in the number of persons coming forward with claims of sexual harassment and assault in recent years. Colleges and universities are not immune to these claims; we have seen several university cases highlighted in major media outlets. How do universities manage situations when graduate students claim they are being sexually harassed or assaulted by a professor? This panel will assess the magnitude of harassment and assault in colleges and universities and discuss best practices in changing the culture of organizations and addressing the problem at the grassroots level.

Moderator

Charles E. Menifield

Charles Menifield is dean of the School of Public Affairs and Administration at Rutgers University—Newark. His research interests lie primarily in the areas of budgeting and financial management, public health and welfare, and policing. Other areas include public management information systems, education finance and public administration education. He has two books on minority politics and two on public budgeting and financial management. His most recent articles have appeared in Public Administration Review, the Journal of Public Budgeting, Accounting and Financial Management, International Journal of Public Administration and State and Local Government Review. Menifield's current research examines the impact of the CHIP program on reducing the number of uninsured children, changes in gun laws and police killings in the United States. He previously served as associate dean in the School of Public Affairs at the University of Missouri—Columbia and as director of the public administration program at the University of Memphis.

Presenters

RaJade Berry-James

RaJade Berry-James is associate professor of public administration in the School of Public and International Affairs and resident faculty in the Center for Genetic Engineering and Society at North Carolina State University. She is a life member of ASPA, a member of NASPAA's Executive Council and past chair of the Commission on Peer Review and Accreditation. Her research and teaching interests focus on social equity, program evaluation and research methods. Her recent book, Why Research Methods Matter: Essential Skills for Decision Making (2018), examines research applications to support evidence-based decisionmaking. A native of New Jersey, she received her bachelor's degree from Rider University, a master in public administration from Kean University and her doctorate in public administration from Rutgers University—Newark.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Nicole Elias

Nicole Elias is assistant professor in the Department of Public Management at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, CUNY and co-founder of Women in the Public Sector at John Jay College. Her research, teaching and service fall under the broad umbrella of social equity in public administration and policy. She is a research fellow with the U.S. Department of Defense's Equal Opportunity Management Institute, held a research fellowship at the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and served as lead faculty advisor to the U.S. Office of Personnel Management on the 2016 government-wide inclusive diversity strategic plan. Elias is co-recipient of John Jay College's 2018-2019 inaugural Presidential Student-Faculty Research Collaboration Award, examining gender equity in municipalities. She is author of numerous pieces, her most recent published in the Journal of Public Management & Social Policy and Public Integrity. She is co-editor of a symposium on the future of women in public administration appearing in Administration & Society.

Donna Greco

Donna Greco is policy director at the Pennsylvania Coalition Against Rape (PCAR). She has advocated on behalf of sexual assault survivors for mainly 20 years—as a legal advocate, community organizer, social worker and trainer. As PCAR's policy director, she has the privilege of working with legislators, staff and partners to ensure Pennsylvania laws are responsive to the needs of sexual assault victims and their families, systems and communities that surround them. Greco's brief experience as a Title IX Coordinator in higher education has given her insight into some of the strengths and challenges in addressing campus sexual assault in a victim-centered manner.

Mindy Weinstein

Mindy Weinstein is acting director of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's (EEOC) Washington field office. She oversees operations that include investigations, mediations, federal sector hearings and community outreach and education. Prior to her current role, she served as a special assistant to EEOC Vice Chair Leslie E. Silverman, to whom she provided legal and policy guidance on a wide range of matters, and helped lead the EEOC's systemic task force. Weinstein's prior positions include regional attorney in the EEOC's office in Charlotte, North Carolina; attorney in the EEOC's Systemic Litigation program in Washington, DC; special assistant to former EEOC Chairman Evan Kemp, trial attorney in the EEOC's Baltimore office; and special assistant U.S. attorney in Washington, DC. She is a graduate of Wellesley College and The George Washington University School of Law.

America's Infrastructure: Is a D+ Acceptable?

MONDAY, MARCH 11

12:45 p.m. - 2:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Infrastructure

Every four years, the American Society for Civil Engineers (ASCE) issues an Infrastructure Report Card. According to the most recent scores, America's infrastructure earned a D+ overall, an alarmingly substandard grade for structures that undergird the nation's economic health, domestically and globally. ASCE contends that the nation's infrastructure problems are solvable with sufficient investment, leadership and planning—and a clear vision for the future. But, those elements are the crux of the matter, aren't they? Who pays and who benefits? And, who is in charge? This conversation features experts in infrastructure investment, system safety and leadership and planning who will discuss where we go from here.

Moderator

Wendy Haynes

Wendy Haynes is special assistant to the vice president for university advancement at Bridgewater State University. A tenured full professor and former director of the NASPAA-accredited MPA program, Haynes brings a rich background of public service leadership, scholarship, teaching and consulting to her new role. She is a seasoned “pracademic,” having served in a variety of state and local government leadership roles across the United States. Intrigued by systems for ensuring institutional accountability and smart strategic planning, she served for 13 years in the Massachusetts Office of Inspector General, most recently as first assistant inspector general for megaproject oversight. An ASPA past president and National Academy of Public Administration fellow, she is deeply engaged in the State Department’s Young African Leader Initiative and Mandela Washington Fellowship. Haynes lives on Cape Cod with her husband and contends that being a grandmother is the best job ever.

Presenters

Casey Dinges

Casey Dinges is senior managing director at the American Society of Civil Engineers (ASCE), where he oversees major components of the Society, including government relations, communications and strategic planning, membership and marketing and web operations. He provided executive level leadership during development of the high-profile 2017 Report Card for America’s Infrastructure, as well as for the 3D IMAX film, Dream Big: Engineering Our World. Numerous programs under his oversight have earned awards and recognition during his three decade career, including from those American Society of Association Executives, the Construction Writers Association of America and the American League of Lobbyists. Prior to joining ASCE in 1985, Dinges worked for the Environmental Fund, National Audubon Society and Congressman Sidney R. Yates (D-IL). He earned his bachelor’s degree from Wesleyan University in 1979.

Brandye Hendrickson

Brandye Hendrickson was named deputy administrator of the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) in July 2017 after having built a reputation as a strong leader as commissioner of the Indiana Department of Transportation. As FHWA’s deputy administrator, she puts her 20 years of business experience to work leading a 2,900-person federal agency and maximizing its $44 billion annual budget. She is only the second woman to head the FHWA and has a deep appreciation for the strength of an organization filled with people of different backgrounds and perspectives. She has a bachelor’s degree from Indiana University and is a professional in human resources.

Paul Wiedefeld

Paul Wiedefeld became general manager and chief executive officer of Washington Metro in 2015. Since that time, Metro has turned the corner on safety, service reliability and financial management. Through its Back2Good program, Metrorail is delivering nine out of 10 customers to their destinations on time; customer satisfaction has reached the highest levels in recent years; and Metro has received a clean, on-time financial audit for three consecutive years. For the first time in the organization’s existence, under his leadership, WMATA has received dedicated regional capital funding from local, state and federal governments. Throughout his time at Metro, Wiedefeld has focused on the customer experience, including introducing such customer amenities as the Rush Hour Promise, which automatically credits rail customers for trips delayed by 15 minutes or more. Prior to joining Metro, he was chief executive officer of BWI Airport and chief executive officer of the Maryland Transit Administration. Wiedefeld has a master’s degree from Rutgers University.

PRESIDENTIAL PANELS

Census 2020: A Count That Matters

MONDAY, MARCH 11

2:15 p.m. - 3:30 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Social Equity

Mandated by the U.S. Constitution, the decennial census is a count that matters. It impacts voting representation, as well as funding allocations for such areas as education, health care and housing. This panel will examine the challenges associated with Census 2020 for public administrators, including the continued vacancy of a Census Bureau director, reduced administrative capacity to administer the census, conflicting federal guidance on census questions related to citizenship, race and ethnicity, and increased fear among immigrants to complete the census.

Moderator

Susan T. Gooden

Susan T. Gooden is interim dean and professor of the L. Douglas Wilder School of Government and Public Affairs at Virginia Commonwealth University. She is an internationally recognized social equity expert, a National Academy of Public Administration fellow and ASPA past president. Her research has been funded by several organizations, including the Russell Sage Foundation, the Kellogg Foundation, the Smith Richardson Foundation, MDRC and the Manhattan Institute for Policy Research. She was appointed to the Commission on Peer Review and Accreditation, the accrediting arm of the Network of Associated Schools of Public Policy, Affairs and Administration. She previously served as an elected member to the national policy council of the Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management. In 2016, she was appointed to the Virginia Community College System board by Governor Terence McAuliffe. She earned her master's degree from Virginia Tech and her doctorate from the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

Presenters

Albert E. Fontenot, Jr.

Albert Fontenot is associate director, Decennial Census Programs, U.S. Census Bureau. He is responsible for providing executive leadership and direction for 2020 census programs and operations, the American Community Survey and the bureau's geographic programs. He previously was assistant director for field operations, where he oversaw the field division, six regional offices, National Processing Center and Office of Survey and Census Analytics. He also served as director of the Chicago region, assistant regional director of the Los Angeles region and in other key leadership roles in the Los Angeles region. Fontenot joined the Census after retiring from a successful career as a senior corporate executive in the private sector, including more than 12 years as president and chief executive officer. He received a bachelor's degree in management and a master of business administration from DePaul University in Chicago. He also holds a doctor of ministry in pastoral ministry.

Mary Jo Hoeksema

Since January 2004, Mary Jo Hoeksema has been director of government affairs for the Population Association of America (PAA) and Association of Population Centers (APC). In addition, she has co-directed The Census Project since 2008. Prior to her position with PAA/APC, she worked at the National Institutes of Health (NIH) for approximately 10 years as legislative officer at the National Institute on Aging and special assistant to the director of the NIH Office of Policy of Extramural Research Administration. Hoeksema served as a legislative assistant for Congresswoman Rosa DeLauro and legislative correspondent for U.S. Senator Jeff Bingaman. She has a master of public administration from The George Washington University and is a former presidential management fellow.

Beth Lynk

Beth Lynk is director of the Census Counts Campaign at The Leadership Conference on Civil and Human Rights, the nation's oldest, largest and most diverse civil and human rights coalition. She previously served as associate director of federal communications for Planned Parenthood Federation of America and Planned Parenthood Action Fund, focused on shaping the organizations' political communications and media narrative around federal policy, congressional issues and related lawsuits. She was a senior associate at the Raben Group and served in the office of Congresswoman Jan Schakowsky. Lynk is a graduate of Northwestern University.

He has a master's degree in education and a bachelor's degree from Stanford University.

Developing the Next Generation of Public Service Leaders

MONDAY, MARCH 11

3:45 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Service

Career federal leaders are the tip of the spear when it comes to advancing a public service ethic and restoring the public's confidence in government during turbulent and disruptive times. But, what are those leaders doing to promote the next generation of federal public service leaders and build the leadership development pipeline programs needed to recruit and retain 21st century leaders? This panel will explore exemplar federal agency leadership development programs, system level constraints that encourage and/or inhibit their development and federal and academic perspectives on how to best prepare our next generation of public servants for the demands of federal leadership.

Moderator

Bill Valdez

Bill Valdez was appointed president of the Senior Executives Association (SEA) in 2016. He sets SEA's overall strategic direction, strengthening the SEA through legislative and policy initiatives, building a leadership pipeline for the Executive Branch and establishing SEA as a thought leader in Washington, DC policy debates. He retired from federal service in 2014. His career with the U.S.

Department of Energy (DOE) spanned more than 20 years, holding positions that included acting director, Office of Economic Impact and Diversity; director of business services, Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy; and director of planning and analysis, and director for workforce development, Office of Science. Valdez is an adjunct faculty member in American University's Key Leadership Program, was awarded the Presidential Rank Award (meritorious), elected a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and elected to SEA's Board of Directors and served as its Chairman. He received his master's degree from the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies.

retain a top-notch workforce, and strengthening the performance and independence of the federal statistical system. He is an adjunct faculty member of GAO's Learning Center. Goldenkoff also serves on the Advisory Board of The George Washington University's Trachtenberg School of Public Affairs and Public Administration, and his articles on federal management, science policy and other subjects have been published in various journals. He received his MPA from The George Washington University and was a presidential management fellow.

Significant Risks in Higher Education—The Future Is in Our Hands

TUESDAY, MARCH 12

8:00 a.m. - 9:15 a.m.

Chinese Ballroom

Public Finance

The higher education sector is changing rapidly. Some shifts have been years in the making and follow other patterns and cultural trends; others are the result of recent disruptions to the sector itself, such as in student loans and college affordability. As the model for higher education evolves, new risks will emerge, known risks will take new forms and have more extensive impacts, and crises inevitably will unfold. Universities must be comfortable with a "new normal" of perpetual discomfort. At this session, you will hear from leaders from all sides of the sector, who will share their perspectives on the risks for higher education and possible considerations for institutions in dealing with these challenges moving forward.

Moderator

Cynthia Vitters

Cynthia Vitters is a Deloitte risk and financial advisory managing director at Deloitte & Touche LLP and assists government, public sector and higher education clients in developing and implementing enterprise risk management (ERM) programs. She has more than 20 years of federal ERM and financial management experience at the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Federal Student Aid, where she served as chief risk officer.

Presenters

Michael Dean

Michael Dean is chief risk officer and senior executive head of portfolio, risk and data at the U.S. Department of Education, Federal Student Aid (FSA). There, he leads a transformative effort to deliver commercial, best-in-business practices in managing FSA's student lending portfolio. FSA's

$1.5 trillion portfolio is the largest single-purpose consumer lending portfolio in the world, accounting for more than 30 percent of all U.S. government assets, 70 percent of all receivables and nearly seven percent of the national debt. He also is responsible for leading the management of enterprise-wide risks, including policy and compliance, business operating units, cybersecurity and financial and reputational risks. Dean has a passion for driving innovation and change in higher education finance. He received his bachelor's degree in accounting, his master's degree in enterprise systems and brand management and doctorate in educational administration and higher education from Southern Illinois University Carbondale.

Luke Figora

Luke Figora is senior associate vice president and chief risk and compliance officer at Northwestern University in Evanston, Illinois. In this role, he oversees a team of 55 professionals covering risk management, university compliance, internal audit and business services. He oversees the university's enterprise risk management program and works closely with the audit, risk and compliance committee of the Board of Trustees to ensure risks are appropriately addressed throughout the institution. He joined Northwestern in 2015. He holds a master's degree in business administration from the University of Chicago Booth School of Business and a bachelor's degree from Lake Forest College.

Julie A. Zobel

Julie Zobel is assistant vice president for safety, emergency and enterprise risk management at George Mason University. She began working in safety and compliance in 2000 as the university biological safety officer, chemical hygiene officer and assistant radiation safety officer, and later as director of laboratory safety. In 2007, Zobel's role expanded as she worked with university officials to establish the university's first environmental health and safety office, and then again in 2015 when she became responsible for the Office of Risk Management. She earned bachelor's degrees from the University of Findlay and the University of Akron where she also earned a master of science degree. She received her doctorate in biodefense from George Mason University.

WELCOME RECEPTION

SATURDAY, MARCH 9, 2019

6:30 p.m. - 8:30 p.m.

The Mayflower Hotel, Grand Ballroom
1127 Connecticut Avenue NW • Washington, DC 20036

The 2019 Annual Conference Welcome Reception will take place at the prestigious Mayflower Hotel, the host hotel for the conference and a historic venue in Washington, DC. There could be no more perfect location for this special event as we celebrate ASPA's 80th Anniversary and welcome attendees to this year's premier conference.

As one of the most historic hotels in the city, The Mayflower Hotel, Autograph Collection has welcomed locals and visitors alike into its elegantly gilded hallways and gloriously appointed spaces for nearly a century, playing host to inaugural balls, the elite of the city, the famous and the infamous, decades of society weddings and legions of guests who just want to be in the center of it all.

Just some of the many highlights include:

- Elected president in 1932, Franklin D. Roosevelt prepared to deliver an inaugural speech intended to reassure U.S. citizens amidst an economic depression. On March 3, 1933 in room 776 on the eve of his inaugural address, President Roosevelt penned one of the most famous lines in U.S. political history, "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."
- The Carvery Restaurant and Coffee Shop's most famous guest, FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover dined here nearly every working day for 20 years until his death in 1972, always selecting the same menu items. It is also there that President Harry Truman, another frequent restaurant patron, gave the hotel its tagline, "Washington's Second Best Address."

- After a major renovation, The Mayflower Hotel was placed on the National Register of Historic Places in 1983 and later named to the National Trust's Historic Hotels of America in 1989.
- The longest suspension of play in American baseball occurred in 1994 when the remainder of the season was cancelled. In a disagreement regarding player salaries, owners and players met at The Mayflower to come to a resolution. Discussions, which involved input from President Bill Clinton and Congress, finally ended the strike after 234 days.

The Welcome Reception will feature a special tribute to 80 years of advancing excellence in public service, as well as special hors d'oeuvres, drinks, live music and plenty of space for networking.

STUDENT & NEW PROFESSIONAL SUMMIT

FRIDAY, MARCH 8, 2019

8:00 a.m. – 3:15 p.m.

Palm Court Ballroom

This annual event focuses on topics that are critical to students and new professionals: building a resume or CV, getting a job, making tenure and getting published. Whether you are planning for a practitioner career or an academic one, you will want to be at the summit to learn from experts in the field while networking with colleagues and leading public administrators.

STUDENT SUMMIT MASTER OF CEREMONIES

Lindsey Evans

Assistant Professor, University of Louisville

8:00 a.m. – 8:30 a.m.

Getting Started

A career in public service can mean many things. What level of government is of most interest to you and what topic area is most inspiring? Where are your skills best suited and what kind of schedule will work best for your work/life balance? These are all questions to consider as you start to plan life beyond your degree. Our expert will address them and more from personal perspective.

PRESENTER

Carol Rusaw

Retired

8:30 a.m. – 8:45 a.m.

Small Group Discussions: Personal Experiences

8:45 a.m. – 9:45 a.m.

Resumes and CVs: Selling Yourself

Now that you have given some thought to your career aspirations, it's time to tailor your resume or CV to match. Whether you're 22 or 52, your life experiences, previous job history, skills, languages, publications, expert projects and more could fill pages. What is most valuable to a future employer and what is most relevant to what you want to do next? This workshop will walk you through dos and don'ts, frequent mistakes made and the essentials to be included on a CV or a resume, depending on where your future takes you. Bring a copy of your paperwork and all of your questions; you'll need them to make the most of this session. Q-and-A time will be provided.

PRESENTERS

Networking: More Than Happy Hours and Business Cards

Need we say more? To be truly effective at networking, you must integrate it into your daily life. Yes, happy hours are helpful and you should always have business cards in your pocket—but that is because those habits are just two pieces of a larger puzzle. So are staying connected with former colleagues and friends; checking in with acquaintances periodically to keep your name on their radar; building relationships with new contacts; knowing when to push yourself—and how hard to do so; and making plans for social gatherings, whether you “need” anything or not.

Grow your career and your community through Valdosta State University

VSU's Public Administration graduate programs offer curriculum to help you develop the analytical and quantitative thinking needed to make decisions in today's complex world.

Three programs to choose from:

- Graduate Certificate Programs

NATIONAL PUBLIC SERVICE AWARDS

MONDAY, MARCH 11, 2019

9:30 a.m. – 11:00 a.m.

Grand Ballroom

Co-sponsored by ASPA and the National Academy of Public Administration, the National Public Service Awards honor individuals who make outstanding contributions and whose accomplishments are models of exemplary public service for those dedicated to the public good—now and in the future.

Thomas Becker

Thomas Becker is the academic director for The Judge Advocate General's (JAG) School, assuming those duties in August 2009. He oversees JAG School curriculum and faculty development, and engages with JAG Corps leadership to ensure the curriculum meets the Corps's needs.

Becker was commissioned in 1974 as a distinguished graduate of Air Force ROTC and designated a judge advocate in 1977. He served 22 years in the Air Force where his assignments included appellate military judge, associate deputy general counsel for the Department of Defense and staff judge advocate at two installations.

Becker retired in the grade of colonel in 1999 to accept then-Governor Tom Vilsack's appointment as state public defender of Iowa. After Vilsack left office, Becker served as an administrative law judge for the State of Iowa until accepting his current position.

Becker has a J.D. from Washburn University and an L.L.M. in constitutional and criminal law from The George Washington University. He is a member of the bars of the U.S. Supreme Court, the Iowa Supreme Court and the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Armed Forces.

Senator Barbara Favola

Senator Barbara A. Favola represents Virginia's 31st district, including parts of Arlington and Fairfax counties and a portion of Loudoun County. Prior to her election as a state senator, she served on the Arlington County Board for 14 years (1997-2011) and chaired that body three times.

During her service with the county, she was the board's leading advocate for children, youth and families; her contributions to the community included establishing mental health services in the public schools.

Throughout her public life, Favola has been a vigorous supporter of universal human rights. In the Virginia Senate, she is focusing her legislative efforts on women's reproductive rights, health care access, K-12 education funding, workforce training, safety net programs, helping foster children, preventing domestic violence and sensible environmental policies. She also believes a living wage is essential for families and communities to thrive. She acknowledges that job creation and economic security are the cornerstones of a vibrant Commonwealth and a secure future.

Prior to Favola's elected life, she served as a presidential management intern and senior policy advisor at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. She also served on the House Budget Committee in the U.S. House of Representatives. She is the founder and managing director of Pathways to 21st Century Communities, a consulting group specializing in government relations and community outreach. In addition to her Senate duties, she serves on numerous Boards and Commissions, including the Advisory Committee for the Arlington YMCA and the Fairfax CASA Board.

Jessica Ross

Jessica Ross has been director of Washington County Public Library in Chatom, Alabama for 14 years. She recently received her PhD in communication and information sciences from the University of Alabama. In addition to professional service work, she volunteers as a leader in civic engagement, leadership initiatives and small business development through several community service organizations and is a mentor to many school-aged students across the county.

NATIONAL PUBLIC SERVICE AWARDS

Anthony A. Williams

Tony Williams, the former mayor of Washington, DC (1999-2007), is chief executive officer of the Federal City Council, an organization focusing the creative and administrative talents of Washington's business and professional leaders on major problems and opportunities facing

the District.

Williams is widely credited with leading Washington's comeback during his two terms as mayor, restoring our nation's capital's finances and improving the performance of government agencies, all while lowering taxes and investing in infrastructure and human services.

In addition to his duties with the Federal City Council, Williams is a senior advisor to King and Spaulding, LLP and serves on several company boards, as well as the boards of Urban Institute and the National Geographic Society. Prior to Federal City Council, he led the global government practice at the Corporate Executive Board in Arlington, Virginia. He also taught public finance and urban leadership as the William H. Bloomberg lecturer in public management at Harvard's John F. Kennedy School of Government, while coordinating programs for the Municipal Innovation Program at the Ash Center for Democratic Governance and Innovation.

Williams holds a bachelor's degree from Yale, a master's degree from the Harvard Kennedy School and a J.D. from Harvard Law School, as well as a number of awards and honorary degrees, including Governing Magazine Public Official of the Year in 1997. He is a National Academy of Public Administration fellow and former president of the National League of Cities.

2019 SECTION AWARDS

The following is a list of awards presented by ASPA's Sections in recognition of individual and organizational contributions to the public sector. Please see the awards brochure for this year's honorees.

Center for Accountability and Performance (CAP)

Emerging Leaders Award

This award recognizes individuals who are actively implementing performance management systems, innovating new practices and promoting the importance of performance and accountability within their governments and communities.

Harry Hatry Distinguished Performance Measurement and Practice Award

This award recognizes an individual whose outstanding teaching, education, training and consultation in performance measurement have made a significant contribution to the practice of public administration.

Organizational Leadership Awards

This award recognizes outstanding applications of a systems approach to performance measurement that has resulted in a culture change, sustained improvements and demonstrated positive effects on government performance and accountability.

Joseph Wholey Distinguished Scholarship Award

This award recognizes outstanding scholarship on performance in public and nonprofit organizations. The recipient makes a significant contribution to advancing knowledge in a scholarly journal about the development, implementation, use and impact of performance measurement.

LGBT Advocacy Alliance (LGBT)

Published Article Award

This award is presented to the author or coauthor of the best paper published in 2018 that supports the Section's mission in a field-related journal.

Visionary Award

This award recognizes the unique characteristics of an individual to envision a future that would be diverse, inclusive and equitable. True visionaries are not part of the herd and their solutions are not always popular. They stand out with their strong beliefs and hold steadfast to their guiding principles, even in the face of adversity. They are ahead of their time.

Section for Women in Public Administration (SWPA)

Joan Fiss Bishop Leadership Award

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an honoree who, by example and action, has promoted increased participation of women in the public service profession; exhibited a defined contribution to increased involvement in the public sector; shown innovative leadership and accomplished professionalism in their public service career; and made a commitment to the profession through current or past ASPA membership.

Marcia P. "Marcy" Crowley Service to SWPA Award

Originally established in 1991 and rededicated in 2007, the award recognizes an honoree for outstanding service to SWPA, service to the Section for several years and for making a demonstrated impact on the Section's work. The honoree must be a Section member in good standing to receive the award.

Julia J. Henderson International Award

Originally established in 2007, the award recognizes an honoree for demonstrated commitment to international public administration, in particular, or to international public service in general by a lifetime of public service; or to careers in international public administration and public service. The honoree is not required to be an ASPA or SWPA member.

Rita Mae Kelly Distinguished Research Award

Originally established in 1991, the award recognizes an honoree for research contributions to gender-related issues; performing research on an issue(s) significant to women's role in public administration; and making an impact through research on women's lives. The honoree is not required to be an ASPA or SWPA member.

SWPA Conference Scholarship

These scholarships help defray the cost of attending ASPA's Annual Conference.

Section on Chinese Public Administration (SCPA)

Marc Holzer Best Article Award

This award recognizes the top article published in Public Performance and Management Review during 2018.

Ph.D. Student Best Paper Award

This award recognizes the best paper presented at the Marc Holzer Public Performance Symposium, held during the ASPA Annual Conference.

Section on Complexity and Network Studies (SCNS)

Sam Overman Best Paper Award

This award recognizes scholarly work that makes a significant contribution to the network or complexity literature and holds practical relevance to the public administration field. It is presented annually at the Section's business meeting and comes with a cash prize.

Section on Democracy and Social Justice (SDSJ)

Best Article Award

This award recognizes an outstanding peer-reviewed journal article published in the prior year that examines issues of democracy and social justice.

Best Book Award

This award recognizes an outstanding book published in the previous calendar year that examines issues of democracy and social justice.

Section on Effective and Sound Administration in the Middle East (SESAME)

Distinguished Achievements and Leadership in Public Administration Scholarship or Practice in the Middle East Award

This award recognizes significant and sustained contributions to public administration in and for the Middle East-North Africa region through scholarship, leadership and/or practice over an extended period of time.

Section on Emergency and Crisis Management (SECM)

Dissertation Award

This award supports dissertation research in emergency and crisis management performed by Ph.D. candidates who have successfully defended their proposal but do not have a completed dissertation.

William Petak Award

This award recognizes an outstanding paper in emergency and crisis management.

Section on Environmental and Natural Resources Administration (SENRA)

Best Graduate Paper Award

This award encourages original graduate-level research that expands our understanding of a problem or issue in environmental or natural resource administration; it helps defray the cost of participation in ASPA for graduate students. The award comes with a cash prize and a certificate of recognition presented at the ASPA Annual Conference. Winning papers also will be published in the SENRA newsletter.

Section on Ethics and Integrity in Governance (SEIGOV)

Lifetime Achievement Award

This award recognizes SEIGOV members whose extraordinary contributions to the furtherance of the Section's goals throughout their careers merit special acknowledgment. The award may recognize more than one individual annually and is presented during the Section's business meeting.

National Exemplars of Ethics and Integrity in Public Service

Section members may nominate individuals or groups whose exemplary ethics and integrity in public service have advanced the Section's mission. Honorees receive a personalized certificate and a one-year ASPA and SEIGOV membership.

2019 SECTION AWARDS

Public Integrity Awards

Scholars whose works were published in Public Integrity in 2018, Volume 20, are recognized in several categories: Best Article, Best Guest Editorial and Best Book/Film Review. Winners are selected based upon the perceived impact of the article in developing the theoretical, empirical and applied literatures on ethical issues affecting society, especially those that introduce new discourse to the field.

Student Paper of the Year Award

Annually, SEIGOV invites students in public affairs and public policy graduate programs to submit, or for faculty to nominate, student research papers authored during the previous year on any public or administrative ethics topic. Submissions are peer reviewed and judged for their quality, methodology, importance and policy implications, as well as clarity in writing. The winning submission is announced in media publications and its author is awarded a plaque of recognition from the Section during the ASPA Annual Conference.

Section on Intergovernmental Administration and Management (SIAM)

Donald C. Stone Best Student Paper Award

This award recognizes an exceptional student research paper on a question related to intergovernmental relations and management. The award is accompanied by a cash prize to assist the winner with ASPA Annual Conference attendance.

Donald C. Stone Practitioner Award

This award recognizes significant contributions to the practice of intergovernmental relations and management over a substantial period of time.

Donald C. Stone Scholar Award

This award recognizes significant contributions to the study of intergovernmental relations over a substantial period of time.

Section on International and Comparative Administration (SICA)

Col Award for Outstanding SICA Leadership

This award is offered to SICA members who have demonstrated strong commitment and made active leadership contributions to SICA's mission. It is named after Jeanne Marie Col and presented annually at the Section's business meeting.

David Gould Scholarship

This scholarship offers graduate students in the fields of public administration, public policy and/or international development support to attend the ASPA Annual Conference. Honorees receive a stipend and a free registration for the SICA symposium.

Fred Riggs Award for Outstanding Researcher

This award recognizes those who have made significant substantial and widely recognized contributions to the conceptual, theoretical or operational development of international, comparative or development administration. It is named in honor of Fred Riggs, a pioneer in these fields and a founder of the Section.

Section on Korean Public Administration (SKPA)

Junior Asian Scholarship Award

This award recognizes East Asian graduate students whose papers are accepted for presentation, or graduate students who will present papers on East Asia-related topics at the ASPA Annual Conference.

Section on Personnel Administration and Labor Relations (SPALR)

Book Award

This award recognizes an outstanding book in the field of public human resources management published between 2016 and 2018.

Dissertation Award

This award supports dissertation research performed by Ph.D. candidates in the area of public/nonprofit human resource management. The award comes with a cash prize and will be presented during the Section's business meeting at the ASPA Annual Conference.

Outstanding Scholar Award

This award recognizes individuals who have demonstrated an exemplary record of research, teaching and service in public human resources management.

Section on Professional and Organizational Development (SPOD)

Student Scholarships

These awards are designed to help facilitate learning to advance students' academic work around finding solutions to public organizational challenges, as well as to introduce students to the Section's work and encourage their long-term involvement in it.

Section on Public Administration Research (SPAR)

Best Book Award

This award recognizes a book that significantly contributes to public administration research.

Section on Public Law and Administration (SPLA)

Jurisprudence Champion Award

This award recognizes an individual who has made superior and notable contributions to the field of public law and administration that reflect social change.

Stellar Practitioner Award

This award recognizes an individual who has made effective and compelling contributions to the practice of public law and administration that, over time, have impacted how public administrators implement public law.

Section on Public Performance and Management (SPPM)

Best Article Award

This award recognizes the top article published in Public Performance and Management Review in 2018.

Best Paper Award

This award recognizes the best paper presented at the Section's symposium, held during the ASPA Annual Conference.

Section on Science and Technology in Government (SSTIG)

Digital Governance Junior Scholar Award

This award recognizes a junior scholar who has made a substantive contribution to improving our understanding of how to best utilize information and communication technology to improve public governance and public service.

Founded in 1979, the Section on Personnel Administration and Labor Relations (SPALR) represents a diverse community of human resource professionals from around the world dedicated to applying merit-based principles and encouraging diversity in public and nonprofit sectors; promoting positive labor-management relationships; advancing and expanding the knowledge of the field through research and scholarship; connecting theory, research, and practice in human resource management and policy to improve the effectiveness of public services; recognizing the contributions of public human resource professionals to quality public service; and promoting the importance of human resource management as a fundamental part of public and nonprofit organizations, as well as public administration education.

To fulfill its mission, SPALR sponsors panels, workshops and symposia at the annual ASPA national conference to provide opportunities for members to network and exchange ideas. Additionally, SPALR has developed several task forces to study important personnel and labor relations policy issues. These task forces have helped to forge ASPA positions and inform policy makers.

CITY ON THE LINE

How Baltimore Transformed Its Budget to Beat the Great Recession and Deliver Outcomes

By Andrew Kleine

"Andrew Kleine's book is a must read for all who are interested in greater accountability and innovation in government. Baltimore's journey is a fantastic example of both the challenges and successes of our complex landscape in local government." —Darin Atteberry, city manager, Fort Collins, Colorado

"In our work at Harvard on innovation in government we look for important expert contributions that will assist practitioners. City on the Line is one of the best and a call to action for leaders of every political stripe to think differently—very differently—about how tax dollars are spent." —Stephen Goldsmith, former mayor of Indianapolis, and professor of government at the John F. Kennedy of Government at Harvard University

Parts memoir, manifesto, and manual, this book tells the story of Baltimore's radical departure from traditional line item budgeting to a focus on outcomes like better schools, safer streets, and stronger neighborhoods—during one of the most tumultuous decades in the city's history.

Andrew Kleine is a nationally recognized leader in municipal finance and performance management. He served as Baltimore's budget director from 2008 to 2018.

Research That Matters

The Schar School of Policy and Government at George Mason University brings together faculty who seek to push the frontiers of conventional wisdom, apply rigorous policy and administrative analysis to complex issues, and make connections to real-world decision makers and thought leaders in public service.

Located at the doorstep of the nation's capital, the Schar School prepares graduate and undergraduate students for careers in federal, state, and local government as well as private consulting firms and nonprofit organizations.

The Schar School is proud of our following accomplishments:

- Partner of Sandia National Labs on Frontiers in Resilience Symposium (2019)
- Home of ASPA's Conference Program Co-Chair (2018)
- Home of NAPA's Herbert Roback Scholarship Recipient (2018)
- Partner of NAPA on Prioritizing Governance for Resilient Critical Infrastructure Symposium (2017)
- Partner of the Washington Post on National Politics Polls
- Home of the Virginia Certified Public Manager® Program

Training 'Pros' For Public Service

Pitt Graduate School Tackling Problems Of Cities And Nations

Courses Tailored To Fit Home Or Global Affairs

This is the age of the specialist. There is a premium on almost any kind of skill. Yet many towns, cities, even nations, are being run by comparative amateurs.

This is the first of three articles telling how the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs at the University of Pittsburgh is tackling the problem of making sure that administrators at all levels, both at home and abroad, know what they are doing.

All through the baking hot Arabian summer the buildings in the great oil company's fine new housing project multiplied and spread across the desert.

And the company's graduates, by their foresight. With modern, convenient houses like these, they wonder how could their Arab workers be anything but content? Why, they were just like American homes!

And that was just the trouble. No one had stopped to think that homes designed for Americans would be completely unsuited to Arabs.

The workers refused to live in them. A tremendous investment was wasted.

A thousand miles to the south, a party of Texan tourists sat comfortably in the cool lounge of Nairobi's Norfolk Hotel, where the barefoot, white-robed waiters were more than usually attentive.

Why They Got Service

If the visitors had stopped to wonder why they were

U. S. and the West. Or it can do just the opposite.

Christians Breed Hate

Irritations quickly become resentment. Resentments can soon turn into hatred. The salesmen of communism begin to appear highly attractive by comparison. Then it is merely a matter of time before "Yankee, Go Home!" appears in the streets.

Teaching Americans about the world in which they live—and how to behave when they are turned loose in it—is one of the vital jobs of a unique graduate school which opened last September at the University of Pittsburgh.

In its international programs at least, the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs is dedicated to the proposition that sauce for the goose is not necessarily sauce for the gander. That what goes around may be

College of Public Affairs and Administration

The College of Public Affairs and Administration is dedicated to the belief that effective public affairs education, significant public affairs scholarship, and active service to the community will improve government and public policy in Illinois, the nation and the world.

CPAA is pleased to welcome Dr. Kenneth Kriz to our faculty as a Distinguished Professor of Public Administration. Dr. Kriz is a nationally-recognized scholar in the field of Public Finance, with areas of research in municipal debt policy and management, public pension fund management, public financial risk management, and economic development finance. Dr. Kriz has consulted with several states, cities, and nonprofit organizations, and has served on the board of trustees for numerous pension funds. Dr. Kriz has published more than 40 peer-reviewed academic journal articles and book chapters, has published a textbook on quantitative methods, edited a forthcoming book on tax increment finance, and been a Fulbright Scholar and Fulbright Senior Specialist. Dr. Kriz is looking forward to joining the CPAA faculty, which has strong record of academic achievement in Public Finance.

The ASPA Annual Conference is built on an important framework: Bringing together those committed to the public good is an important purpose that supports the Society's mission of advancing excellence in public service. A freeflowing exchange of ideas and educational interchange are important and necessary for advancing the art, study, teaching and practice of public administration, as well effective professional development for those invested in our field.

In support of these goals, ASPA is committed to providing a safe, welcoming and inclusive environment for all conference participants. We also are committed to providing an environment that is free from harassment or discrimination in all its forms, including age, race, ethnicity, national origin, religion, language, sexual orientation, gender identity or expression, disability, health, socioeconomic status, marital status, domestic status, parental status, physical appearance or body size. Such conduct is contrary to ASPA's values and high standards of ethical practice. These standards include the principles of treating all persons with fairness, justice and equality; respecting individual differences, rights and freedoms; and promoting affirmative action and other initiatives to reduce unfairness, injustice and inequality in society.

Further, such conduct is contrary to ASPA's Code of Ethics, which all members promise to support. Specifically, it violates the principles of promoting democratic participation; strengthening social equity; demonstrating personal integrity; and advancing professional excellence.

This Code of Conduct outlines the expectations by which all participants shall abide during the ASPA Annual Conference, conference-related activities, social events and other ASPA-sponsored events in which participants are gathered. Participants include but are not limited to member and non-member attendees, speakers, public officials, staff, contractors, vendors, exhibitors, sponsors, awardees, guests and volunteers.

Expected Behavior

ASPA expects all participants to:

1. Present themselves, interact and communicate in a professional and constructive manner, whether in person or virtually.
2. Handle dissent or disagreement with courtesy, dignity and an open mind. Be respectful when providing feedback.
3. Be sensitive to and respectful of cultural contexts that vary among regions within the United States and abroad, reflecting ASPA's global membership and reach.
4. Wear their conference badge during all conference-related programming and present it upon request by staff or other event personnel.
5. Be honest and truthful about any questionable behavior they witness on the part of any meeting participant when reporting it to ASPA staff or leadership. Report behavior as soon as possible after witnessing it.

Unacceptable Behavior

1. Harassment, intimidation or discrimination in any form will not be tolerated.
 - a. Harassment consists of a single or multiple persistent or pervasive acts that are demeaning, abusive, offensive or create a hostile professional environment. It may include unwelcome sexual solicitation, physical advances or verbal or non-verbal conduct that is sexual in nature; threatening, intimidating or hostile acts; circulation of written or graphic material denigrating or showing hostility toward an individual or group; or epithets, slurs or negative stereotyping based on group identity. Harassment may take place either in person or through digital channels including social media outlets.
 - b. Sexual harassment includes, but is not limited to, unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature. Behavior and language that are welcome or acceptable to one person or culture may be unwelcome and offensive to another. Examples of behavior that, when unwelcome, constitute sexual harassment include sexual flirtations, advances, or propositions; verbal comments or physical actions of a sexual nature, including sexually degrading words used to describe an individual; making unwelcome comments about someone's physical appearance; a display of sexually suggestive objects or pictures; sexually explicit jokes; unwanted touching; and persistent and unwelcome solicitation of emotional or physical intimacy. Sexual harassment may take place either in person or through digital channels including social media outlets.
2. Verbally or physically abusive behavior toward others during the ASPA conference will not be tolerated. This behavior includes bullying, profanity directed toward others, property damage, deliberate intimidation or stalking, harassing photography or recording, physical assault, real or implied threat of physical harm.

3. Disruption of speakers, presenters or any individuals engaged in the public presentation of conference-related content.

Consequences of Unacceptable Behavior

1. Engaging in unacceptable behavior as described in this Code of Conduct may result in being asked to leave the event and/or being barred from future events.
2. Anyone requested to cease unacceptable behavior is expected to comply immediately. ASPA staff, hotel personnel or security may take any action deemed necessary and appropriate. If necessary, law enforcement will be engaged.
3. Infractions of the Code of Conduct on the part of ASPA members may be referred to the ASPA Executive Committee and/or the Ethics and Standards Implementation Committee for review and resolution. As stated in the bylaws, the National Council may terminate membership or impose other sanctions on members following investigation and recommendation by the Ethics and Standards Implementation Committee for a serious violation of the Society's Code of Ethics. Infractions of this Code of Conduct may be interpreted to also violate several tenets of the Code of Ethics, including but not limited to promoting democratic participation, strengthening social equity, demonstrating personal integrity and advancing professional excellence. In order to be acted upon in a timely fashion, infractions must be reported within 90 days of the occurrence in order for a review to take place.

Reporting Unacceptable Behavior

The safety and security of our attendees is our most important priority. If you are the subject of unacceptable or inappropriate behavior at the conference, notice that someone else is being harassed or have any other concerns, please notify an ASPA staff member immediately. They will be available to assist in contacting hotel/venue security or local law enforcement, provide escorts or otherwise assist those experiencing harassment to feel safe for the duration of the event. In the case of emergency, or if you cannot locate an ASPA staff member, please contact a hotel or venue staff member or security. We expect participants to be honest and truth about any questionable behavior they witness on the part of any meeting participant when reporting it to ASPA staff or leadership. Please report behavior as soon as possible after experiencing or witnessing it so that ASPA can take prompt remedial action.

Staff can be located at the event registration desk throughout operating hours, the ASPA membership booth during exhibit hall hours, and in all plenary sessions, Presidential Panels and officially sponsored receptions. Staff wear badges with a visible Staff ribbon. You also may email aspaconference@aspanet.org for assistance.

Please refrain from reporting unacceptable behavior through social media channels, as ASPA's channels are not monitored 24/7 and your report may not be seen in a timely fashion.
